Special to Newsday

Ready to tap your feet to the sound of popping corks — and international jazz?

The annual gathering of music lovers, world-class artists and Long Island wine drinkers begins tomorrow on the East End, just in time to jazz up a long, dreary winter.

With the stark beauty of snow-covered vineyards contrasting with the warmth of fine Long Island reds, rosés and whites, the series of weekend concerts can be just as enjoyable for the artists as the audiences.
